Print, paper, and packaging trends

SECTOR TRENDS

REUSABLE AND RESEALABLE SOLUTIONS⁽¹⁾

- One-time use packaging is continuously phased out in new areas of consumers’ daily lives, including most recently with food and beverage delivery packages.
- Businesses are rolling out trial and pilot programs to test consumer engagement and evaluate the scalability of revamped packaging programs.

SUSTAINABLE PACKAGING⁽²⁾

- Consumer Packaged Goods (CPG) brands and packaging partners are balancing meeting corporate sustainability goals and 2030 regulatory mandates with maintaining their customer base and brand identity.
- Pilots, trials, and limited launches are used to test consumer reaction to reducing single-use and virgin plastics.

REGULATORY LANDSCAPE⁽³⁾

- Regulatory bodies are adopting “ecomodulation” practices, or monetary fee-based penalties charged to producers for the use of less sustainable materials.
- New policies also assess the “cradle-to-grave” impact of products, mandating producers to manage the entire packaging lifecycle, including post-consumer waste and recycling.

DESIGN AND INNOVATION⁽⁴⁾

- Companies are right-sizing packaging to minimize material use, reduce shipping costs, and enhance sustainability by using only the necessary amount of packaging.
- The adoption of advanced dimensioning technology is accelerating, enabling precise product measurements to create custom-fit packaging solutions that reduce waste and improve efficiency.

ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE AND PACKAGING⁽⁵⁾

- AI, integrated with IoT and blockchain technology, is enhancing packaging efficiency, transparency, and consumer engagement through smart labels and real-time information.
- Packaging businesses now face data-security and skilled-workforce challenges as technology is increasingly adopted in this space.
